Itinerary:

Days 1-3

For clients flying in - on arrival at Tambo International Airport Johannesburg guests are met and transferred by kombi (mini bus) to Black Leopard Camp on the Thaba Tholo Wilderness Reserve.

Thaba Tholo Wilderness Reserve encompasses 6,000 Hectares, set within the stunning Steenkampsberg Mountains. This private nature reserve is located 30km from the town of Lydenburg and along the route between Johannesburg airport and the Greater Kruger Park region (approximately 200km to the north east). This is a pristine area of mountainous wilderness that is home to several animal species that are not often seen in the Kruger Park region, such as Sable, Eland, Red Hartebeest, Blesbuck, Mountain Reedbuck, Klipspringers, Cape fox, and even Oryx. The reserve has successfully reintroduced Buffalo into the area after an absence of over 100 years.

Our INGWE Leopard Research program has operated extensively on this reserve for many years, during which time we have recorded a significant amount of data on the resident Leopards and their movements, including the Black and Golden leopard.

Although Leopard sightings in this mountainous wilderness are less frequent due to the terrain, our network of camera traps continues to record leopard movement on the reserve both day and night. The reserve is also home to some of the most elusive birds in South Africa, such as the stunning Narina Trogon, Paradise Flycatchers, Sunbirds, Bee-eaters, Turacos, Verreaux Eagles and Denhams Bustards.

The historic rock engravings (petroglyphs) that are found on Thaba Tholo date back to the early Stone Age. There are numerous theories as to the meanings behind these rock engravings; some believe they are maps of settlements, others believe they are maps of constellations, and some believe they are drawings of visions and dreams.

More recent historical artefacts include the ruins of Voortrekker (ancestors of the Afrikaners of modern day South Africa) settlements. The ruins of these houses can still be found high in the mountains. They were constructed with large, flat rocks and termite mound mixture; the Voortrekkers would mix pieces of termite mounds with water, to create a kind of cement.

This reserve is family owned, along with Black Leopard Camp, which nestles sympathetically within the reserve. Black Leopard Camp is a four star tented camp, that was built, and is managed by the same family.

Accommodation is mid range. Four star accommodation and five star service.
